One of the most important factors in the success of a business is the quality of its customer service. This is especially true in the case of a company that is competing in a highly competitive market. In order to succeed, a company must be able to provide its customers with the highest quality of service possible. This means that the company must be able to respond to its customers' needs in a timely and efficient manner. It must also be able to provide its customers with the highest quality of products and services. In order to achieve this, the company must have a strong commitment to customer service. This means that the company must be willing to go above and beyond to ensure that its customers are satisfied. It must also be willing to listen to its customers' feedback and make changes as needed. Only by providing the highest quality of customer service can a company hope to succeed in a highly competitive market.

Afish discovers its need for water, only when it is no longer in it. The world is an oyster for the students and to live and sustain in it, is the skill to be acquired, that is indeed the need of the hour. Global competence is that art which is like the water to our students. It is a multi-dimensional construct that requires a combination of knowledge, skills, attitudes, and values successfully applied to global issues or inter-cultural situations. Despite the talk of a new wired world where money, ideas, news, and people can move around the world in the blink of an eye, just a fraction of what we consider globalization exists. And today's companies, nations and people understand the necessity of the skills such as leadership, higher order thinking, collaboration, communication and problem-solving, thus desperately are looking for mind-sets that can develop cross-cultural networks, adapt to plural and heterogeneous society, accept differences, and celebrate diversity. Now the question arises, we as the torch bearers of education are ready to bring the change in our students' life!
